Greetings.

I hope everyone had a great Independence Day. It only occurred to me after the holiday weekend that we had turned the corner into July and that I hadn't written a President's message. Time seems just to keep speeding up the older I get.

The big news for now is that we are in Nude Recreation Week. This Saturday, July 11, is International Skinny Dip Day, so be sure to take off all your clothes and get in the water. Of course, I suggest visiting one of our affiliated clubs to do this. I will be one of them this Saturday, although I'm not sure which yet.

We held our AANR-Southwest convention June 11-14 at Star Ranch. It was a fun time of fellowship and of conducting the business of the Association. I would like to welcome Dennis Miller to the Board of Directors. Our previous Vice President, Janine Siegfried, stepped down from that role and was elected to be a director. A week later, we learned that she won the election to be the AANR Trustee from the Southwest Region, which precludes her from serving on the regional board. We are working to fill her vacancy right now. We also have a new Southwest Vice President, our outgoing AANR Trustee, Heather Cheney.

AANR President Linda Weber attended the Southwest Region Convention. The AANR Convention is in the Willamettans in Oregon, August 11-16. Check out <https://www.aanr.com/events/2026-aanr-convention-the-willamettans/> for info about the convention.

The summer is just heating up, and the best way to enjoy it is without clothes. So, get on out to your favorite naturist resort or club. Till next month...
