Happy October, fellow AANR-SW members.

This September has been the hottest in DFW history, with high temperatures of 90 or higher (and sometimes much higher) every single day. In fact, the last time our daily high temperature fell below 90 was on June 19th. Thankfully, the weather forecast is predicting much lower (but comfortable) temperatures for the next ten days beginning on the first of October.

The final race of our AANR-Southwest Nude Racing Series, the Chilly Cheeks 5K, will be held on October 3rd, at Star Ranch just east of Austin. Sadly, I will not be there, as I will be selling copies of my books (and of the movie Naked as Created: The Pastor Jim Moore Story) at the Fall Festival at Oaklake Trails. Naturist fiction author Will Forest and I have shared a table at this event for several years. If you're in the area, come on out and get some new books for your reading list.

The 2027 AANR Southwest Region Mid-Winter Meeting will be Saturday, January 23, at Star Ranch. The meeting will begin at 10:00 AM to give day visitors time to check in. I encourage all our members to attend.

October, of course, ends with Halloween, and all our landed clubs will have special events celebrating this spooky time of year. Check the calendar of your favorite club and get out there and enjoy the season.

Have a great October...
